Press:

- Feature article in the San Jose Mercury News: Headline: “Fun Home’ set designer brings her own memories to memory play”. First line of article reads: “With a tough coming-out story of her own, San Jose State University professor and scenic designer Andrea Bechert found more than just work as she designed the sets for “Fun Home.” Full article found here: <https://www.mercurynews.com/2018/10/04/fun-home-set-designer-brings-her-own-memories-to-memory-play/>. Published October 4, 2018
- Numerous positive reviews in Bay Area papers for scenic designs with various companies. Following are links to a few of the articles:
 - “Andrea Bechert’s stunning set makes a big impression when you enter the Mountain View Center for the Performing Arts. It brings to life two backyards divided down the middle of the stage, one with an immaculately manicured garden with topiary and an unnaturally regular lawn, and the other more or less a patch of dirt, all possibility and nothing more, sheltered by a big friendly tree. These two yards are, in a way, the stars of the show.” link to full article
 - “...before any of the principal characters ever appear on stage, Andrea Bechert's impressive scenic design transports the audience to the Washington, D.C. suburb the playwright has imagined. Bechert teaches design and technology at San José State University. If there are any students reading this who want to learn about stagecraft, they should sign up for one of her classes. Bechert created the backyard facades of two adjacent brick homes. They summon up the milieu of a stately East Coast neighborhood, and what that neighborhood represents. These evocative two-story houses are so tall they reach up to the theater rafters. One yard's manicured lawn is lined with purple iris and hydrangea. The window shutters are painted a cheerful blue. The shutters on its twin next door have been neglected. Weeds poke up from the earth, and the limbs of a giant oak tree stretch far and wide. When the characters do enter the stage from their respective back doors, these exterior signs line up with the interior lives of both couples.” Link to full article
 - “Just one look at Andrea Bechert’s set speaks volumes — a partially deconstructed house with an elegant interior and run-down exterior, as if past and present were coexisting side by side. Some of the walls are missing so that the arch of the roof and a second-floor window hang in midair.” Link to full article
 - “Andrea Bechert’s magnificent set design is a study in scale and nuance crowned by a sprawling Southern manse sitting center stage. It’s a down-home palace crammed with nooks and crannies. The meandering delights of a back porch, a sturdy tree and a wonderfully vintage mint-green kitchen ground this TheatreWorks Silicon Valley production in a delicious sense of lived-in complexity. Everywhere you look on this set, there are new layers to explore.” Link to full article

- “Andrea Bechert’s spacious set depicts a quaint gray and blue building facade strewn with vines in front of a blue silhouette skyline dominated by cupolas with crosses.” Link to full article
 - “Andrea Bechert’s set gives the audience a taste of what’s to come as the audience enters the Mountain View Center for the Performing Arts, a visual mashup of nightclub, recording studio and congressional hearing chamber.” Link to full article
 - “Adding to the realism is Andrea Bechert’s heavily detailed kitchen set in Act I and soothing Greek beach in Act II ...” Link to full article
 - “The set, by Andrea Bechert, is one of the most beautiful I’ve seen; each yard a thing of detailed wonder and full of realistic botanicals....” Link to full article
 - “Scenic Designer Andrea Bechert creates a stunning suburban landscape.” Link to article
 - “Framed by a vast floating array of twinkling lights (elegant set by Andrea Bechert) that suggest far off stars or brain synapses firing away...” Link to full article
 - “There’s a lot to appreciate in director Dale Albright’s lively production, but at the top of the list is Andrea Bechert’s superbly detailed set of a large, posh and quirkily decorated living room.” Link to full article
 - “Andrea Bechert’s tidy and elegantly detailed rotating set, nails all the play’s rhythms: the explosive anger, the quiet deathbed confession, the yearning, the banter, the rapture.” Link to full article

Professional Development:

- Academic Affairs Leadership Discovery Group. The purpose of AALDG is to provide an opportunity for interested San Jose State University faculty and staff in the Academic Affairs Division to explore their interest in leadership and how to prepare for a possible leadership position in academia or related area. Fall 2018
- Interfolio Committee Training, and Interfolio Faculty Training. This course is for members of RTP review committees to learn how to best use Interfolio (eFaculty) to review RTP information. Take this course to learn how to best use the Interfolio (eFaculty) tool for RTP submission and review. Fall 2018
- UndocuAlly Training. UndocuSpartan Student Resource Center, in collaboration with Undergraduate Admissions & Outreach and the Financial Aid & Scholarship Office, offers a 5-hour certification program which gives faculty and staff the opportunity to engage in a series of activities and conversations that explore topics on immigration, educational access, and the lived realities of the undocumented community. UndocuAlly Trainings help faculty and staff gain a deeper understanding of: the historical timeline of state and federal policies that impact undocumented people; personal experiences of undocumented youth in their community; information about resources for undocumented students at SJSU; what it means to be an effective ally and champion for undocumented students; and ways to collaborate with staff/department to address institutional barriers and share best practices. Fall 2018

- SJSU Cares Program. This program teaches faculty about the SJSU Cares program including understanding the basic needs of our students, insight into the student's meeting with a case manager, and our campus available support resources and volunteer opportunities for addressing food insecurity. Fall 2018
- Active Shooter Training. These sessions will serve as an opportunity for Police and Fire Department personnel to review active shooter scenarios and public safety response procedures. This is of particular interest to me working in theatre where large crowds gather, as well as the classroom where we have large groups of students in an enclosed space. Given by the City of Mountain View Police & Fire Departments. Fall 2018
- Engaging for Success - Summer course redesign workshop. This summer workshop focused on redesigning courses in order to help San Jose State University students be successful. Data from our own student body as well as from Universities nationwide indicate that as many as 10-12% of our students have visible or invisible disabilities, and that they often have challenges succeeding in their classes because their learning needs go unrecognized or unmet. Summer 2018.
- Connecting the Dots Workshop. This was a semester long workshop focused towards San Jose State University faculty who identify as a minority. This workshop was hosted by the Office of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion. Spring 2018
- Advisor Professional Development Training. I attended several training sessions offered by San Jose State University, including "Advisor Professional Development Workshop" on February 28, 2017 in BCC 032 and on September 25th in Clark Hall 505. I also attended the "California Promise Advising workshop" on October 19, 2017 in Clark Hall 244.
- I attended all University 101 sessions for new faculty, hosted by Dennis Jahne. University 101 is a voluntary onboarding program for new tenure-track faculty. The program teaches each incoming cohort about the procedures and logistics of the university and helps them adjust to the SJSU culture. Participants learn about such topics as student demographics and admissions, teaching diverse student populations effectively, and multiple support systems and resources to increase graduation rates and promote student success.
- Renewed Emergency Medical Training, First Aid and CPR certification with the city of Mountain View. I believe that having this training, and staying current with this certification, allows me to better serve our students, my colleagues, and potentially the patrons in our venues should an emergency occur. This training covered major and minor incidents, first aid, CPR, AEDs, in multiple scenarios including earthquakes, fires, explosions, and work place injuries. As I actively work in the scene shop and the theatre with multiple tools and systems that could be fatal, I will continue to keep up on this very important training. May 2018.

RESEARCH, SCHOLARSHIP & CREATIVE ACTIVITY

In order to help clarify RSCA within my discipline (Design for the Performing Arts) I am providing information on the guidelines and standards set forth by the United States Institute for Theatre Technology:

The USITT guidelines for tenure and promotion strive to impart to its members a general understanding of tenure and promotion, as well as establishing clear professional standards by which performance should be evaluated by colleagues and administrators at their institutions. USITT recognizes the necessary differences among academic institutions and does not attempt to suggest a single, standardized set of procedures or levels of achievement for faculty evaluation or accomplishment.

- It is the position of USITT that the Master of Fine Arts (MFA) degree is the appropriate terminal degree for faculty appointments related to creative/research activities involved in the public performance of theatrical events.
- It is the position of USITT that creative/research activities—including designing scenery, costumes, lighting, sound, and projections, as well as the technical execution of those designs by specialists in technical production, stage management, and production management—are appropriate forms of creative/research activity for faculty teaching within the disciplines, generally, of theatre or dance. These creative/research activities require substantial analysis, historical, and technological research, and the synthesis of information; they result in the creation of new works of art that are widely disseminated through public performance.
- USITT acknowledges that many institutions appoint design and technology faculty to a single tenure-track line with responsibilities in two or more areas of specialization. The evaluation of the candidate's performance should acknowledge the complexities of such an appointment as a single position rather than penalize the candidate by evaluating each area of specialization individually.
- It is the position of USITT that the creative/research activities of design, production, and technology faculty are equivalent to publication. While it is incumbent on each campus to determine the scope and appropriateness of such work, USITT recommends that all off-campus design and production work be considered the equivalent of juried, refereed publication.
